

CULTURE AND CHANGE

TOWARDS A DYNAMIC ANTHROPOLOGY

DEADLINE EXTENDED: February 15th
Call for Papers – 2012 UBC Anthropology Graduate Conference
March 2nd and 3rd, 2012

Culture and Change: Towards a Dynamic Anthropology

The Anthropology Department at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver, is pleased to announce that Dr. Yongming Zhou, Professor of Anthropology at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, will be the keynote speaker for the 2012 graduate student conference to be held at UBC Friday, March 2nd, and Saturday, March 3rd, 2012. Additional information, advance registration, and banquet ticket reservations are now available on the conference website at <http://anthgradconf.alyanne.net/index.html>.

Anthropologists recognize that cultures are dynamic and changing. Recent global events, such as the uprising in Egypt and the Occupy Movement, have pushed these notions of social dynamism to the forefront of public consciousness. How do global forces combine with local dynamics to shape the futures of communities around the world? Scholars from the traditional fields of anthropology, as well as geography, political science, law, and other disciplines are engaging with this question in new ways.

We cordially invite graduate and undergraduate scholars across disciplines to join us for an exploration of these themes. Please submit paper, poster, and documentary/ethnographic film abstracts by the new extended deadline February 15th, 2012, via the submission form on the conference website. Abstracts are limited to 150 words. Please include 3 or 4 keywords below the body of the abstract.

To register for the advance rate of $15, and to purchase banquet meal tickets for $20, please visit the conference website at <http://anthgradconf.alyanne.net/index.html>. Also check back for continual updates on the program and schedule.

Please circulate widely to interested parties and direct any questions to anthconfubc@gmail.com. Thank you, and we look forward to seeing you on March 3rd!
